Gasoline Was Stored By Los Angeles Times

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 12.—That gasoline was stored on every floor of the old Times building, blown up October 1, 1910, was one of the principal facts developed today by the cross-examination of prosecution witnesses in the murder trial of M. A. Schmidt, alleged McNamara accomplice.

This testimony was adduced through the medium of Marcus S. Bentley, a that the ink tank exploded, relying on the words of Louis A. Carry, stenographer. He stated that he saw survivors of the disaster spattered with ink.

The defense seeks to disprove the belief that the Times was blown up with dynamite, as confessed by J. B. McNamara.

There is talk of forming a social club in West Stayton. It would be an excellent idea and provide a good place for the young people to meet and enjoy themselves. We have many long winter evenings ahead of us, why not make them something to look forward to.—Standard.
